

Aligned

Dating without guessing games

Concept

Aligned is a Berlin-first dating platform built for people with ADHD, Autism, and AuDHD who want clearer, calmer, more honest connection.

It replaces vague bios and mixed signals with structured profiles, transparent compatibility, and guided interaction.

The Problem

Mainstream dating apps optimize for engagement and ambiguity, not clarity.

For neurodivergent users, this leads to miscommunication, fatigue, and poor match quality.

How It Works

Profiles are built around communication style, social energy, sensory preferences, routine, intent, and lifestyle rhythm.

Matches are explained through strengths, friction points, and confidence levels.

NLP Value

NLP converts free text into structured meaning, improving clarity and reducing ambiguity.

It highlights communication style, detects low-signal profiles, and supports better conversations.

It also assists moderation by identifying harmful or manipulative patterns.

Berlin First

Berlin offers strong cultural alignment, high density of target users, and existing dissatisfaction with mainstream dating apps.

Launching within the Ring ensures early traction and meaningful matches.

Trust & Ethics

No diagnosis verification or clinical inference.

AI is used for clarity and support, not prediction or manipulation.

Built with privacy, consent, and GDPR alignment in mind.

Why This Niche Wins

High-intent, underserved users.

Clear differentiation through clarity and trust.

Focus on real outcomes, not engagement metrics.

Bottom Line

Aligned makes dating clearer, safer, and more effective.

It reduces ambiguity and helps people connect in a more human way.